

Husky Energy Announces Chief Financial Officer Resignation

Husky Energy today announced that Jon McKenzie, Chief Financial Officer, has resigned and will be leaving the Company effective April 5, 2018.

“On behalf of the Board of Directors and our employees, I would like to thank Jon for his contributions to Husky,” said CEO Rob Peabody.

Husky is executing against the five-year plan outlined at its 2017 Investor Day, and is meeting or exceeding stated targets.

“We are returning cash to shareholders and maintaining a strong balance sheet,” said Peabody. “We continue to invest in low-cost production growth, with our integrated operations adding consistent value.”

Husky will provide an update on its five-year plan delivery and 2022 targets at its 2018 Investor Day, being held May 29th in Toronto.

Husky will announce a new Chief Financial Officer in due course. The Company’s Controller, Jeff Hart, has been appointed Acting CFO. Hart is a Chartered Accountant and a member of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants. He has a bachelor of commerce degree from Saint Mary’s University, Halifax, with finance and accounting majors. Hart has worked for Husky for eight years, advancing through a series of senior financial roles. Prior to joining Husky, he worked for Statoil, Imperial Oil and Deloitte.
